Dumpling Bowl preps for debut

Event expects over 7,000 visitors Friday to sample worldwide variety at festival

The dumpling, with various versions found in cultures all over the world, gets the star treatment at the 11th annual Dumplings & Beer Festival from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday at San Gabriel's Historic Mission District.

More than 7,000 guests are expected to take in the first Dumpling Bowl, amid the festival's lineup of food, drinks, entertainment and interactive experiences.

"What I'm most excited about is that the festival is really becoming much more than just a food event," said festival producer Matt De Miglio. "Obviously, dumplings are the star. We have the Dumpling Bowl, hosted by JoySauce, where some incredible restaurants will compete, but there's also live entertainment, our Beer Garden, the Delta and Filipino Forces VIP Lounge and our Culinary Journey Through Asia experience."

Admission to the festival is

Worries about El Niño grow after recent hurricanes' strong glancing blows

By Christina Merino

Strong waves crashed against the bulkhead along Long Beach's Peninsula on Tuesday, sending water up into the air and raining down onto the already damaged historic boardwalk — as the high tides keep coming.

While high tides are set to calm after anticipated extreme weather this past weekend, worries for residents along the beachfront community continue to swell as the city works to address the impacts of Hurricane Marie and prepare for the future as El Niño draws near.

Crews work to reinforce vulnerable portions of the Long Beach Peninsula with berms on Tuesday.

To address these worries, city officials held a community meeting Monday evening, at the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. About 100 residents from the Peninsula and neighboring Belmont Heights attended, hearing how the city is preparing for hurricane season, high tides and El Niño.

The Peninsula was impacted by Hurricane Marie over Labor Day weekend, with 8- to 10-foot waves rolling in at high frequency,

What's a Kelvin wave and should we be worried?

By Laylan Connelly
LCONNELLY@SCNG.COM

If Hurricanes Odalys and Polo along with extreme high tides weren't enough to make Southern California coastal residents nervous about crashing waves and rising waters damaging homes and other property, add one more thing to that destructive list:

A Kelvin wave.

So what exactly is a Kelvin wave, and should we be worried about it?

A Kelvin wave is a warm-water anomaly

Newsom signs 2 bills to limit ICE

One restricts use of state property, the other requires state investigate fatal shootings

City News Service

ENCINO — Gov. Gavin Newsom on Tuesday signed two bills co-authored by Assemblyman Jesse Gabriel, D-Encino, aimed at restricting the use of state property for federal immigration enforcement and requiring state investigations of fatal shootings of unarmed civilians by immigration officers.

Assembly Bills 1806 and 1807 were among several immigration-related measures signed Tuesday by Newsom.

AB 1806 requires the California Attorney General's Office to conduct an independent investigation into fatal shootings of unarmed
