An estimated 38,000 valley residents gathered in Canoga Park for the 32nd Memorial Day Parade to honor fallen heroes including those who were alumni of Canoga Park High School.

Called "Saluting the Price of Freedom," the opening ceremony was on the corner of Remmet Avenue and Sherman Way began with the presentation of colors from color guards and U.S. naval sea cadets, including those from James Monroe High School.

The ceremony continued with presentations from the parade's grand marshal, retired Maj. Gen. Peter Gravett; Ray Cole, president of the Canoga Park Neighborhood Council; Congressman Brad Sherman; State Sen. Caroline Menjivar; Assemblymember Jesse Gabriel; and Los Angeles City Councilmember Bob Blumenfield.

Al Mooney sang "Proud To Be An American," and the parade marched down Sherman Way towards Cozycroft Avenue. The numerous parade entries included the LAPD Motorized Drill Team, Scout Troop 474 Color Guard and the Canoga Park High School band, dance and cheer teams.

The Canoga Park Neighborhood Council, the Canoga Park/West Hills Chamber of Commerce, Valley Cultural Foundation and VFW Post 2805 were among the parade sponsors.
