NewsBank inc.

Musk's X Corp. Sues California Over Content Law

September 8, 2023 | Daily Beast, The
Section: News | 136 Words
OpenURL Link

X Corp., formerly Twitter, sued the state of California in federal court over AB587, a state law that would take effect next year and require social platforms to disclose the policies that they adhere to when moderating content. Proponents argued the law increases transparency when it comes to how platforms regulate content. X Corp., owned by Elon Musk, argued in its filing that the law constitutes lawmakers' attempts to force platforms to go beyond basic disclosures and exists for "both the purpose and likely effect of pressuring companies such as X Corp. to remove, demonetize, or deprioritize constitutionally-protected speech that the State deems undesirable or harmful." State Assemblymember Jesse Gabriel shot back at the lawsuit in a statement: "If Twitter has nothing to hide, then they should have no objection to this bill."

Read it at POLITICO

Reproduced with permission of copyright owner or its licensee. Further reproduction prohibited without permission. © 2023 The Daily Beast Company LLC.

- Citation (apa Style)
  Musk's X Corp. Sues California Over Content Law. (2023, September 8). Daily Beast, The. Available from NewsBank: Access World News – Historical and Current: https://infoweb.newsbank.com/apps/news/document-view?p=WORLDNEWS&docref=news/193F1864D06C5C68.